Dosher Hospital Announces Appointment of New CEO and President Dosher CEO Resigns, Interim Leadership Named

SOUTHPORT, NC -- Doshier Memorial Hospital, a critical access community hospital, located in Southport, NC, today announced a new leadership team following the resignation of its former CEO, Tom Siemers. Dr. Brad Hilaman, MD, JD, FACOG, will assume the position of interim CEO and Lynda Stanley, MHA, FACHE will become the hospital's new interim President.

Dosher's new interim CEO and President are no strangers to Doshier or the community. Dr. Hilaman has been affiliated with Doshier since 1995. He graduated from Jefferson Medical College of Thomas Jefferson University in 1976, from Georgetown Law School in 1988, and is currently the hospital's Chief Medical Officer. He is a well-known and respected Obstetrician and Gynecologist and has been primarily responsible for the direction and management of the hospital's highly successful and award-winning Wound Center. Dr. Hilaman will continue as CMO and will continue to oversee the Wound Center and the Doshier Women's Health Clinic during the interim period. Dr. Hilaman and his wife Linda are longtime residents of Southport.

Ms. Stanley was COO of Doshier Hospital from 1986 until 2014 when she became President of the hospital's newly formed Foundation. She graduated from UNC Greensboro with a BS in Medical Technology and has a Masters degree in Health Administration from Central Michigan University. Ms. Stanley is a familiar figure at the hospital and in Brunswick County. She is a Fellow of the American College of Health Care Executives. She has been a key figure in the success of the Doshier Hospital Foundation and the formation of the Brunswick Wellness Coalition. Ms. Stanley will continue to serve as president of the Doshier Hospital Foundation during the interim period. Ms. Stanley and her husband, local businessman Joe Stanley reside in Shallotte.
