Doshier Celebrates Retiring CEO Brad Hilaman, MD

Leaders, guests, and Doshier staff members commemorate Dr. Hilaman's extraordinary 45-year career, invaluable leadership, and service to patients and community.

SOUTHPORT— Doshier Memorial Hospital leaders and guests gathered in the Doshier Hospital lobby on December 7th to commemorate the distinguished career of retiring CEO and Chief Medical Officer Dr. Brad Hilaman. Presenters included Doshier Hospital President and newly appointed CEO Lynda Stanley, Debra Beasley, Vice President of Operations of Healogics, Edgar Haywood III, Former Doshier CEO, and Chairman of the Doshier Board of Trustees, Robert Howard.

Dr. Hilaman relocated to Southeastern Brunswick County from the California Bay Area 26 years ago when offered a position on the Doshier Medical Staff as a women's health physician. Since that time, in addition to his gynecological practice, Dr. Hilaman was instrumental in starting the Healogics Wound Care Center at Doshier as well as treating wound care patients, was appointed as Doshier's Chief Medical Officer in 2012, and in early 2020, became Doshier's CEO.

All speakers commended Hilaman's commitment to Doshier's patients and the community while always seeking ways to improve and reimagine local healthcare. In Robert Howard's words, Dr. Hilaman, "Remained a steward of Doshier's mission and values while successfully navigating the everchanging landscape of healthcare with poised leadership."

After being presented with a Resolution Honoring Extraordinary Service from the Doshier Board of Trustees, Dr. Hilaman took to the podium to address the guests, saying, "This hospital is near and dear to me, but it's the people who make it great. You are the best team I've ever worked with anywhere. You guys may be working in a small hospital, but you're big players."
